Rome is the capital of Italy and London is the capital of England. Rome and London are two of the greatest cities in the world, but they are two very different cities. London is bigger than Rome with a population of 9,787,426 people compared to Rome's 2,645,907.

And of course the other big difference between the cities is the climate. Rome is warmer than London. The average temperature in Rome in summer is 24 °C and in London it's 18 °C. In winter the average temperature in London is 4 °C and in Rome it's 10 °C. But the cities also have many things in common — they both have an underground railway, although the underground in London is bigger, and they also have many interesting monuments. They both have important cathedrals, St Peter's in Rome and St Paul's in London. Tourism is an important industry for Rome and London and millions of tourists come to both cities from all over the world every year.

Listen to three girls speaking about television. Match the speakers to what they say.

Speaker 1

I'm Kim Davidson and I'm fourteen. You'd like to know what I think of television in our lives. Well, for me TV is very important. I like watching documentaries and educational programmes. It helps me a lot with my school projects. It has also helped me to understand history better. I enjoy watching historical films about famous people and events. I enjoy documentaries about animals.

Speaker 2

My name's Kate and I'm thirteen. You've asked me about television. I watch telly for about an hour in the evening. But my elder brother and some of my friends watch TV for hours. They switch it on when they come from school and switch it off when they go to bed. They do their homework in front of the television set. Their marks are not very good. I think it is because of too much TV.

Speaker 3

I'm Alice Grey. I'm thirteen years old. You want to know what I think of television. I know that there is at least one TV set in every British family. Experts say we rarely turn it off. Television entertains, educates, informs us about weather, politics and sports.
